Wall Street lower on Friday, marking its fifth consecutive losing week—the longest such streak in nearly four years. Major indices fell deep into correction territory as geopolitical tensions in the Middle East and surging oil prices spooked investors

Dow Jones Industrial Average: Fell 1.7% to 45,166 points, entering correction territory as it has dropped 10% from its recent record high.

As of March 28, 2026, more than half of the S&P 500's industry sectors have already entered a correction. While the S&P 500 index itself is not yet in a formal correction, it is currently teetering on the edge after a bruising month

The Strait of Hormuz carries ~20% of global oil, the most critical chokepoint.

- A closure or escalation involving Iran, Saudi Arabia, or other Gulf producers is a supply squeeze—pushing oil above $150 quickly, with $200+ realistic if disruptions persist.

Brent crude futures topped $110 a barrel again, a move partly attributed to ongoing drone and missile strikes in the Middle East.

The highest nominal price of Brent crude oil in history was $147.50 per barrel, reached in July 2008.

- Oil may hit a record $200 a barrel if the Iran war drags on till June, with the Strait of Hormuz staying shut, Macquarie Group Ltd. said.

Oil prices surged, with Brent crude trading as much as $110 per barrel following incidents in the Strait of Hormuz.

Rising oil and inflation concerns shifted market expectations, with a 52% probability now seen for a Federal Reserve rate hike by the end of 2026, according to the CME FedWatch Tool.

RRHI 38.95

- RRHI (Robinsons Retail Holdings) — Board Approves Voluntary Delisting; JE Holdings Offers ₱48.30/Share Tender | ₱18.37B Buyout
- RRHI's board approved a voluntary delisting from the PSE after its board approved a voluntary delisting anchored on a ₱18.37 billion tender offer by its controlling shareholder. JE Holdings Inc. — the Gokongwei family's primary investment vehicle with a 46.1% stake — offered ₱48.30 per share for all outstanding shares not held by the group and other delisting proponents. The offer price represents a 32.23% premium over RRHI's one-year volume-weighted average price of ₱36.5285 as of March 26. Shareholders will vote at RRHI's annual meeting on May 12, 2026. RRHI closed 2025 with 6.0% growth in core net earnings to ₱6.743 billion, as net sales climbed 5.7% to ₱210.423 billion.
- Analyst Juan Paolo Colet of China Bank Capital Corp.: "It appears that our local public equity market has not provided the company with enough reason to stay listed, given the stock's persistent undervaluation and low trading liquidity." He noted the tender offer price of ₱48.30 is below the ₱50 buyback price for DFI Retail Group last year.
- Analysis: This is the PSE delisting trend accelerating — MPIC (2023), Premium Leisure (2024), Keppel Philippines (2025), ATI and now RRHI in 2026. The pattern: controlling shareholders concluding that the cost of being publicly listed (compliance, quarterly scrutiny, liquidity premium) outweighs the benefits for companies with concentrated ownership. For RRHI specifically, the stock's persistent discount to intrinsic value despite solid fundamentals (₱210B revenues, 6% earnings growth) justified the take-private logic. The ₱48.30 offer is a 23% premium to the last traded price of ₱39.25 — a fair if not generous exit. JE Holdings must reach 95% ownership for the delisting to proceed. Minority shareholders should tender: the post-delisting liquidity is zero.
- Stance: TENDER at ₱48.30. The 23% premium to last traded price is the exit. Do not hold for better terms — the controlling Gokongwei family controls 66.5% (JE Holdings + directors) making a competing offer essentially impossible. Deadline: shareholder vote May 12.

NIKL 4.31

- NIKL/EPI (Nickel Asia Corp. / Emerging Power Inc.) — EPI Boosts Capex to ₱10.3B for Renewable Expansion; 88% of NAC's Total Budget
- Emerging Power Inc. (EPI), the renewable energy subsidiary of Nickel Asia Corp. (NAC), has allocated up to ₱10.3 billion in capital expenditures for 2026, expanding its solar and battery energy storage system projects. EPI's projected capex represents about 88% of NAC's total budget for the year and exceeds last year's ₱7.6 billion allocation. EPI is developing a 145MW solar project in Subic Bay with its initial phase set for next year, and a 50MW facility in Bataan scheduled for 2027. The company is accelerating solar projects in Leyte and Zambales amid the global oil shock.
- Analysis: The 88% capex ratio to the parent's total budget is the signal — Nickel Asia is effectively a dual-business: nickel mining (the cash engine) and renewable energy (the growth engine). EPI's ₱10.3B investment (~₱2.7B more than 2025) is the right call in the current energy emergency: domestic solar generation reduces dependence on imported fuel and provides stable offtake for power users. Nickel prices have been recovering (+3.33% on 3/26 to ₱4.34) providing the cash flow to fund the solar expansion. The Subic Bay (145MW) and Bataan (50MW) projects add indigenous clean energy in the high-consumption Luzon grid. NIKL on 3/26 was foreign BOUGHT — the market is recognizing the dual nickel+RE value proposition.

PCOR 3.12

- PCOR (Petron Corp.) — Analysts Say Government Takeover Unnecessary; MIC Eyes Co-Investment Instead
- Market analysts said a government buyback of Petron may not be wise given limited fiscal flexibility and the risk of unsettling market competition. China Bank Capital Corp.'s Juan Paolo Colet: "A government takeover of Petron is not necessary. The better policy is to allow the company to continue as a well-managed publicly listed company so that it can serve customers more efficiently." COL Financial's April Lee-Tan: "The government has a poor track record of managing businesses in general." MIC CEO Rafael Consing is pivoting toward a co-investment model rather than full ownership — focused on "targeted, asset-level investments in critical midstream infrastructure such as national fuel storage networks."
- Meanwhile, Petron delivered a blockbuster 2025: net income +84% to ₱15.6B, driven by stronger domestic sales and improved refinery performance. Market share climbed to 27.8% in H1 2025. Petron also received 750,000 barrels of Russian ESPO crude under the US sanctions waiver — with Petron's Limay, Bataan refinery named as the recipient.
- Analysis: Ramon Ang's renewed offer to sell Petron to the government was strategically timed during the Senate energy crisis hearing — it's a negotiating play rather than a sincere divestiture, and the analyst consensus correctly identifies the government as a poor substitute operator. MIC's pivot to co-investment in midstream infrastructure (storage, buffer stock facilities) is more credible and fiscally manageable than a full acquisition. For PCOR as a stock: the 84% earnings surge, Russian oil supply access, and market share leadership make it a compelling play in the current energy shock environment. The ₱249M value turnover on 3/26 with PCOR in the top-5 active stocks confirms market interest.

APX 14.40

- APX (Apex Mining) — Shares Rise on Earnings + Higher Dividend; FY2025 Profit +77% to ₱7.66B
- Apex Mining reported strong financial results for 2025, with consolidated revenues rising to ₱21.34 billion from ₱15.1 billion in 2024. Net income reached ₱7.66 billion, up 77% from ₱4.32 billion a year earlier. The board doubled the cash dividend payout rate to 20% of consolidated net income and declared a special dividend, bringing total payouts to ₱3.83 billion. APX hit a 52-week high of ₱14.7 on 3/26.
- Analysis: Apex Mining is a gold producer and gold was the standout commodity of 2025 (averaging $3,000+ before the recent selling off to $4,417 after touching $4,578). The 77% earnings surge is entirely consistent with gold price appreciation compounding on top of volume growth and operational leverage. Doubling the dividend payout ratio to 20% of net income is a strong signal — management is confident in the earnings trajectory and is returning capital. The ₱3.83B total payout represents an extraordinary return of capital from a mid-cap miner. At ₱14.7 (52-week high), the stock has already re-rated; the entry point should be at pullbacks. Gold's current weakness (-3.26% to $4,417 on 3/27) creates a natural entry opportunity.
- Stance: ACCUMULATE APX on weakness. Gold price is the primary earnings driver — any pullback from current gold levels creates an entry into a fundamentally upgraded miner with doubled dividend commitment. 52-week high confirms the re-rating is underway.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

DMC 9.72

- DMC / CHP (DMCI Holdings / Concreat Holdings) — Cement Prices Rising in Tranches; ₱30-40/Bag Total Increase Planned
- Concreat Holdings Philippines (CHP) is raising cement prices due to higher fuel costs from the Middle East conflict. CEO Herbert Consunji said price increases of ₱10/bag were implemented on March 15 and again last week, with another ₱10/bag planned for April's first week. Increases are structured as a fuel surcharge that can be removed if conditions improve: "In case things happen positively, then we will remove it." Total planned increases could reach ₱30-40 per bag, roughly 15-20% of current prices. For every ₱2 increase in fuel, there is roughly a ₱1 effect on cement prices.
- Analysis: The cement price pass-through is both a risk and a feature. For CHP (a DMC subsidiary), the tranched price increases protect margins from diesel inflation — "unbundling" the fuel surcharge so it can be reversed is smart commercial positioning that avoids permanently baking in temporary cost inflation. For DMC's residential construction pipeline (PHP15.5B capex), rising cement input costs are a margin pressure unless they're passed through to end buyers (Consunji's other hat). Concreat posted a ₱1.9B net loss in 2025 due to higher financing and integration costs from the Cemex acquisition — the pricing strategy is a recovery move. Cement at +15-20% per bag during peak construction season (March-May) means construction input costs are escalating for all major property developers.
- Stance: MONITOR for DMC/CHP. Cement price increases protect margins and are reversible. Watch Q1 2026 Concreat financials for the recovery trajectory post-Cemex integration losses. Broader construction cost inflation is a sector headwind for property developers (ALI, SMPH, DMC Homes).

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

- RRHI Delisting — Strategic Reset Analysis (Supplementary)
- Analysts see RRHI's planned delisting as enabling a "strategic reset" — allowing the Gokongwei-led retailer to make long-term decisions without the quarterly scrutiny and compliance costs of being publicly listed. China Bank Capital Corp.'s Colet noted that "the fact that the tender offer price of ₱48.30 is below the ₱50 buyback price for DFI Retail Group last year may invite some questions, but the latest valuation may have been affected by a change in circumstances."
- The Robinsons Retail delisting follows a broader trend of companies leaving the local stock market. Among recent delistings: MPIC (October 2023), Premium Leisure (2024), Keppel Philippines and 8990 Holdings (2025), and ATI (2026). RRHI will continue to operate within the JG Summit group alongside Cebu Pacific, URC, and Robinsons Land.
- Analysis: The delisting accelerates the PSE's ongoing shrinkage problem — losing RRHI removes one of the PSE's largest multi-format retail names and reduces investable universe for consumer staples exposure. For the JG Summit ecosystem, RRHI goes private but remains a fully operational retail chain (Robinsons Supermarket, Uncle John's, Southstar Drug, Handyman, True Value). The ₱5-7B 2026 capex plan continues — store expansion and renovations are unaffected. The take-private logic is sound: PSE listed companies with controlling shareholders exceeding 65-70% derive limited marginal benefit from listing while bearing significant compliance cost. The RRHI precedent may trigger similar reviews at other Gokongwei and JG Summit entities.
- Stance: TENDER RRHI at ₱48.30.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

CEB 29.60

- CEB (Cebu Pacific) — Secures Jet Fuel Through June 2026; Full Domestic + International Schedule Covered
- Cebu Pacific confirmed it has secured sufficient jet fuel to support its domestic and international operations until June 2026. CEB CEO Michael Szucs said the company is well positioned to withstand challenges, citing commercial and financial resilience and the majority of its flights being domestic. CEB canceled flights to/from Dubai until April 20 and suspended five routes (Davao-Bangkok, Iloilo-Bangkok, Iloilo-Singapore, Clark-Hanoi) until October 2026, while reducing frequencies on Singapore, Jakarta, KL, Melbourne, and Sydney routes.
- Analysis: The fuel security through June is a meaningful upgrade from the prior "end-April secured, working on May" disclosure — it extends the visibility window by approximately 6 weeks and covers the critical Holy Week/summer travel peak (April-May). The CAB fuel surcharge jumped to Level 8 for April 1-15 (highest in two years), which partially offsets higher fuel costs through airfare pass-through. CEB's structural advantages — 73% domestic routes, 72% NEO fuel-efficient fleet, strong ₱12.3B 2025 net income — position it better than PAL for weathering the extended fuel shock. The ongoing route cuts through October are the offset: CEB is right-sizing capacity to its confirmed fuel supply.
- Stance: NEUTRAL to MONITOR for CEB. Fuel through June removes the grounding tail risk near-term. H2 visibility post-June is the next milestone — watch for CEB's fuel procurement announcements in May.

PLUS 16.46

- PLUS (DigiPlus) — Eyes Omni-Channel Setup; New Coast Hotel + IEC Acquisition Advancing; Brazil, South Africa Expansion
- DigiPlus President Andy Tsui articulated the omni-channel vision: "Whether it's a land-based adding the online or the online adding the land-based, eventually we are seeing a benefit of providing players an omnichannel ecosystem. So we want to be a one-stop shop for them." The strategy is anchored by the ₱12B investment in IEC (New Coast Hotel/LaVie Casino) convertible notes for a 53.89% stake. DigiPlus has already made an initial ₱6 billion payment to IEC and expects to complete the final payment by end-May or early June. On international expansion: DigiPlus continues developing the Brazilian market after relaunching GamePlus in early 2026, and submitted a South Africa gaming license application in September 2025 with approval expected in Q2 2026.
- Analysis: The omni-channel strategy is the right long-term play. The Philippine gaming market is mature online — the next growth vector is combining digital with physical to increase wallet share per player (more touchpoints, higher retention, upsell to hospitality/dining at LaVie). New Coast Hotel + LaVie Casino provides the land-based anchor. The ₱12B IEC investment is pending PCC clearance (6-9 months). Internationally: Brazil and South Africa are bold but risky bets — both are highly competitive regulated markets with established local operators. The South Africa license (Q2 expected) would be the first international regulated market beyond Brazil. AI-powered personalization and responsible gaming tools are genuine competitive differentiators. Shares closed at ₱16.46 on Friday (-3.29%) — near-term pressure from macro and regulatory overhang.
