NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

MPI
GTCAP 569.00

- Metro Pacific delivered a clean, broad-based beat in 2025.
- Power remains the dominant earnings engine at 69% of NOI, anchored by Meralco's robust generation business and retail electricity sales.
- Water tariff hikes implemented in January 2026 should provide a further earnings uplift this year.
- The toll road segment faces a near-term headwind from fuel-price-driven traffic decline but remains structurally intact as newer roads (CCLEX, CALAX) mature.
- The upcoming Meralco ERC rate reset ruling (expected June–July 2026) remains a key catalyst for both MER and MPIC.
- Recommendation: ACCUMULATE GTCAP as the most direct listed proxy for MPIC's infrastructure earnings, augmented by banking, automotive, property, and insurance exposure. MPIC as a defensive infrastructure compounder; offers exposure to essential services — power, water, and mobility — that are inherently insulated from cyclical disruption. Target entry on weakness.

- NLEX Corp. has flagged declining traffic volumes as fuel prices surged above ₱80/litre at the height of the Middle East oil shock. This is an expected near-term headwind — motorists, especially commercial operators, reduce highway usage as fuel costs spike. However, with WTI now retreating toward the $79 range following Iran de-escalation, diesel prices should moderate through March-April 2026. NLEX's 9-month 2025 performance was robust (+20% NI), and its toll rate adjustments implemented in early 2026 provide some revenue buffer.
- The structural long-term demand for Luzon toll roads remains intact. near-term toll revenue softness as a risk factor. Traffic normalisation expected in Q2 2026 as fuel prices recede.

RLC 17.76

- The PPP signing formalises a project that has been in the pipeline since 2023. The ₱2.33B 'mallengke' concept — a hybrid modern market and commercial hub — strengthens RLC's Mindanao footprint alongside its existing Robinsons Mall GenSan. The 25-year lease with solar integration and modern amenities reflects RLC's broader premiumisation strategy. The GenSan market commands significant foot traffic given the city's role as the primary trading hub for South Cotabato and Sarangani agricultural products. This is a low-risk, fee-income-generating PPP that improves RLC's recurring revenue quality.
- Recommendation: ACCUMULATE. RLC's PPP expansion strategy, combined with its retail and residential growth, provides a quality defensive property proxy. The stock's positive session (+1.49%) confirms market approval.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

SMC 70.40

- San Miguel's energy arm is expanding its renewable footprint in Mindanao, which is a strategically sound move given the region's growing power demand and lower land cost compared to Luzon. The 300-MW solar project, secured under GEAP-4, provides long-term contracted capacity and diversifies SMC's traditionally fossil-fuel-heavy generation portfolio. Construction phasing reduces upfront capex risk. This is a positive long-term signal for SMC's clean energy pivot.

ROCK 1.86

- The topping off of Power Plant Mall Angeles is a significant milestone for Rockwell's provincial expansion strategy. The mall will bring the iconic Power Plant Mall experience — curated retail, lifestyle dining, and Rockwell's distinctive design aesthetic — to Central Luzon's rapidly urbanising market. With 32,000 sqm of leasable area and a strong pipeline of co-located residential units already selling well, the mixed-use development has a self-reinforcing demand structure. Rockwell's stock surged 5.68% on the news, reflecting the market's endorsement of the Central Luzon expansion thesis.

ALTER 0.76

- Alternergy's decision to use a shelf registration — rather than a single large public offering — is a prudent capital markets approach given the current volatility driven by the Middle East oil shock. It allows the company to raise funds in tranches when market windows are more favourable, reducing execution risk. The 500-MW win from GEAP-4 gives Alternergy a substantial project pipeline that requires capital, making the preferred share raise timely. The PCC's recent clearance of the A Brown / Alternergy Wind One investment removes a regulatory overhang and supports growing investor confidence.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

SM
MWIDE 2.96

- SM Offices' Laguna warehouse complex achieving full leasing reflects the robust industrial and logistics property demand in the Cavite-Laguna corridor, driven by e-commerce and manufacturing relocations. This is a positive signal for SMPH's office and commercial property revenues. Separately, PITX's record 60.28 million passenger throughput in 2025 validates Megawide's BOT infrastructure thesis and sets the stage for an expansion bid. The LRT-1 connectivity, operational since late 2024, has structurally boosted commuter flows and reduces the terminal's dependence on any single transport mode.
- Recommendation: NEUTRAL on SMPH near-term given macro headwinds; MONITOR Megawide (MWC) for infrastructure growth catalyst from PITX expansion approval.

SCC 28.40

- Semirara's 2025 results reflect the commodity price normalisation story that has played out since mid-2023. Despite record coal production (19.9 MMT) and record power sales volumes, the dramatic decline in coal and electricity prices more than offset operational gains. Revenue fell 20% to ₱52.2B. The looming coal contract expiry in July 2027 adds regulatory and re-bid uncertainty, which the market has partially priced in. However, Semirara's operational efficiency and mine expansions position it well for the next contract cycle. The recent oil shock and its effect on energy pricing bears watching — a sustained higher energy price environment would improve SMPC's power segment economics.
- Recommendation: NEUTRAL / MONITOR. Coal price recovery and clarity on the Semirara Island contract re-bid are the key catalysts. Avoid chasing at current prices unless there is a clear inflection in global coal benchmarks.

FGEN 18.20

- The groundbreaking of the 54-MW Inara Solar Plant marks a pivotal strategic shift for First Gen — the Lopez group energy arm has traditionally been gas-heavy, and this project represents its first large-scale solar foray. Backed by a ₱2.1 billion investment, Inara will complement FGEN's growing renewable portfolio. Together with the 1,400-MW Pakil and 600-MW Wawa pumped storage projects under the Prime Infra JV, FGEN is assembling a diversified clean energy platform. The completion of the Batangas solar farm in summer 2027 will add contracted capacity and reduce reliance on wholesale spot market pricing.
- Recommendation: ACCUMULATE FGEN on weakness. Renewable diversification is on track; the Prime Infra hydro deal (scaled to 33% stake / ₱61.9B) reduces concentration risk. Long-term upside is significant given the scale of the pumped storage pipeline.

PRIME INFRA / RAZON

- The Carlyle-Prime Infra deal marks Enrique Razon's most ambitious international upstream energy acquisition to date. SierraCol — Colombia's largest independent oil producer with giant fields Caño Limón and La Cira Infantas — brings substantial producing assets with a 10-year reserve life and strong FCF generation.
- For Prime Infra, this diversifies beyond its Philippine energy, water, and waste infrastructure portfolio into Latin American upstream oil and gas. The deal is expected to close in Q1 2026 subject to Colombian regulatory approvals. For ICTSI shareholders, the SierraCol acquisition is at the Prime Infra (unlisted) level and does not directly affect ICTSI's port operations; however, it reflects Razon's growing global appetite and capital allocation capacity.

- Razon's surge on the Forbes list ($16.5B, +51%) reflects ICTSI's strong share price performance and the expanding footprint of Bloomberry Resorts and Manila Water (east zone).
- Manny Villar's dramatic 82% wealth decline — from $17.2B to $3.1B — following SEC charges against Villar Land Holdings serves as a cautionary tale on governance and disclosure quality.
