Wall Street closed sharply lower Friday as markets were hit by a double shock: rising oil prices and weak U.S. jobs data. Oil surged above $90 after escalating Middle East tensions, while a surprise loss of ~92K jobs raised fears the U.S. economy is slowing.

Iran tension has forced a massive, rapid reassessment of risk, halting the "Sell U.S., Buy Asia" trade due to fears of rising inflation and higher oil prices. Foreign pullout from emerging Asian stocks (ex-China) in nearly four years, with over $11 Billion in net sales this week.

- Iran signals it will fight till the end, energy markets will price in prolonged conflict. Oil shock risk rising $100 per barrel back in play

Foreign investors are exiting emerging Asian equity markets at the quickest rate in almost four years, driven by a global shift toward safety as the intensifying conflict in Iran prompts a major risk reassessment.

Asian stocks are ending the week of March 8, 2026, with a mixed performance after facing extreme volatility that briefly threatened the steepest weekly decline since the 2020 COVID-19 slump.

GOLD & SILVER are ripping as fresh strikes on Tehran spark a flight to safety. WTI Crude is hovering near $80 as the market weighs Middle East escalation against the US move to allow Russian oil flows to India.

Philippine Govt to Observe 4-Day Work Week From March 9, to save energy

The Philippines' gross international reserves (GIR) reached a record high of $112.7 billion as of end-February 2026

OUTLOOK

- The dominant macro risk today is the Middle East conflict — it raises oil prices (hurting airlines and power distributors), weakens the peso, and clouds BSP's rate path.
- The positive stories (First Gen capex, Globe laser, PLDT AI, Aboitiz airports) are fundamentally constructive but longer-term in nature.
- Stay defensive near-term; use pullbacks to accumulate quality names like Meralco, FGEN, and GLO.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

FGEN 17.68

- First Gen has set aside ₱41.7 billion in capex this year, up from ₱33.5 billion in 2025, as it advances a 2,000-MW pumped storage hydropower portfolio.
- The company plans to acquire a 40% equity interest in Prime Infrastructure Capital's pumped storage portfolio for ₱75 billion, covering the 600-MW Wawa project in Rizal and the 1,400-MW Ahunan project in Laguna.
- Analysis: A 24.5% capex hike is aggressive but strategically sound — pumped storage is critical for grid stability as renewables scale. The partnership with Prime Infra diversifies execution risk.
- Recommendation: Watch for financing details; debt-funded capex could pressure near-term earnings. Positive long-term for FGEN.

GLO 1660.00

- Globe's partnership with Transcelestial will see the rollout of over 400 wireless laser links across the country over the next three years, targeting last-mile and backhaul connectivity. The planned rollout follows the deployment of laser technology in Visayas and Mindanao between 2024 and 2025. Notably, Transcelestial is a portfolio company of Kickstart Ventures, Globe's own corporate VC arm.
- Analysis: This is a smart infrastructure play for an archipelago nation, fiber is slow and expensive across 7,000 islands. The laser link technology offers fiber-class speeds without trenching. Globe is also exploring Transcelestial's Legolas long-distance laser links, which can transmit data over distances up to 15 kilometers, pending successful testing in 2026.
- Recommendation: Positive for GLO, strengthens its 5G competitive moat against PLDT-Smart.

TEL 1355.00

- PLDT has announced the deployment of ERICA (Enterprise Risk Intelligence Companion Agent), an autonomous system built on its platform in partnership with UiPath. The system is described as the first agentic AI application in a Southeast Asian telecommunications company, designed to identify, assess, and manage organizational risks with increased speed and consistency.
- Analysis: ERICA is more of a governance/efficiency tool than a revenue driver. It reflects PLDT's push to modernize operations amid competitive pressure and cost management challenges. Positive for sentiment, shows PLDT is not standing still, but limited near-term earnings impact.
- Recommendation: Neutral to mildly positive for TEL.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

AEV 32.80

- Aboitiz InfraCapital has completed a major runway surface upgrade at Laguindingan International Airport, Mindanao's second-busiest airport. Works included runway repainting, rubber removal, and crack repairs. Starting in 2026, the airport's capacity is expected to increase to 6.1 million passengers from the current 3.9 million target.
- Analysis: Steady execution on AIC's ₱12.75B airport concession. The runway rehab is a necessary maintenance milestone rather than a transformative event, but it signals operational discipline.
- Recommendation: Mildly positive for AEV as its infrastructure arm delivers on concession commitments.

MER 617.00

- Meralco said it will review its fuel mix amid Middle East-driven volatility, noting supply is currently 60% gas and 20–25% coal, with potential rate impact by April, while March bills and overall supply remain unaffected. Higher input costs will raise rates since generation charges dominate the bill, complicating sentiment amid MER's ongoing rate reset application and undercollection recovery.
- Despite the headwinds, Meralco is awaiting ERC approval on its ₱7.98B undercollection claim and expects a rate reset decision around June to July, while also seeking a tariff adjustment of ₱2.34/kWh to fund its ₱247B capex program for 2027-2030.
- Analysis: The share price weakness is sentiment-driven, not fundamental. Analysts view share price pullbacks as potential accumulation opportunities, given MER's regulated earnings base and limited direct margin exposure to fuel costs. The rate reset resolution (expected mid-2026) is the key catalyst.
- Recommendation: BUY on weakness for patient investors.

NEWS, ANALYSIS , INVESTING INSIGHT

AVIATION

- About 110 flights to and from the Philippines were canceled or diverted due to the ongoing Middle East conflict, according to CAAP. Higher fuel costs and operational disruptions are the primary risks — jet fuel accounts for a significant share of airline operating costs, and higher oil prices may eventually translate to higher airfares if the increase persists.
- The global aviation industry operates on razor-thin margins, with IATA estimating a net margin of only 3.9% for 2026, leaving little room for increased operating costs at current scale. Aerospace Global News Flight-tracking data shows cancellations across seven major Middle East airports exceeded 12,300 since Feb. 28. Aviation Week Network
- Analysis: Direct negative impact on Philippine carriers (Cebu Air/CEB, PAL) from rerouting costs, stranded passenger expenses, and fuel surcharge pressures. The CAB has kept fuel surcharges at Level 4 for March. Watch for Q1 guidance downgrades. Negative for CEB and PAL.

FGEN 17.68

- First Gen is targeting initial drilling this year for a geothermal project in Indonesia, starting with one well in West Java, where electricity demand is concentrated. The initiative will be carried out in partnership with Indonesia's Sinar Mas Group through PT DSSR Daya Mas Sakti, covering fields across West Java, West Sumatra, Jambi, Central Sulawesi, and Flores with a combined target capacity of around 440 MW.
- Analysis: EDC's Indonesia expansion is a significant strategic move — Indonesia holds ~40% of global geothermal reserves but has tapped only a fraction. The partnership with a well-connected local conglomerate (Sinar Mas) mitigates regulatory and permitting risk. Drilling results from the first West Java well will be a key 2026 catalyst. Positive for EDC and FGEN long-term.
