Daily Pre-Market Institutional Research

Monday, 22 June 2026 | Covering the PSE session of Friday, 19 June 2026

AT A GLANCE

- PSEi −0.29% to 6,135.35 Friday — declines led advances 111–81; net foreign selling ₱452.0M . Mining & Oil (−3.75%) was the worst sector; Financials (+0.74%) the only gainer.
- BSP hiked 25bp to 4.75% (2nd straight) on oil-driven inflation; more hikes flagged . BDO/BPI drew the day's biggest foreign inflows; MBT lagged.
- Mynt (GCash) files for IPO — Globe +5.9% on the week on the value-unlock catalyst; targets ~US$8B valuation, possible Q4'26 listing. Read-through for GLO and AC.
- Oil up on renewed Iran/Hormuz tension — Brent $81.24, WTI $77.40. Higher-for-longer crude reinforces BSP's hawkish bias and pressures the peso (USD-PHP 60.59).
- BTr auction 23 June: ₱40B of 6.375% 2030 bonds + ₱20B of 5.925% 2036 bonds — a read on local-curve demand with the PHL 10-yr at ~7.00%.

NEWS & ANALYSIS
International & Macro

OIL · ENERGY Crude firms on stalled U.S.–Iran talks even as the conflict premium unwinds

Brent settled around $80.6/bbl and WTI near $77.5 on Friday, 19 June after planned U.S.–Iran negotiations at Bürgenstock, Switzerland were abruptly postponed and Vice-President JD Vance dropped plans to attend, reviving doubts over whether an interim memorandum of understanding can be turned into a durable settlement. Prices ticked higher again into the weekend — Brent toward $81.7 and WTI near $78.7 on Sunday — after President Trump threatened to “hit Iran very hard again” over Hezbollah activity in southern Lebanon and as the status of the Strait of Hormuz remained unresolved. The brief carries Brent at $81.24 and WTI at $77.40.

The late-week bounce sits against a much larger retreat: crude had shed roughly 8% over the week and given back most of the war premium accumulated since late February as U.S. CENTCOM lifted port restrictions, stranded tankers began exiting the Gulf and Kuwait signalled higher output. Gold eased to about $4,188/oz and silver, copper, nickel, coal, cocoa and sugar were little changed.

Analysis. For Manila the read-through is unchanged and central: oil is the swing factor behind the BSP’s hawkish turn. A genuine, sustained reopening of Hormuz would relieve imported-inflation pressure, ease the peso and slow the local tightening path — supportive for rate-sensitive REITs, property and consumer names. A relapse keeps the BSP biased toward further hikes and the peso soft. The tape is two-sided; we treat energy headlines as the dominant macro variable for PSE direction this week.

> 🟡 MONITOR — Energy complex — Hormuz/peace-talk headlines are the key macro driver; watch for confirmation of normalised tanker flows vs. renewed disruption.

GLOBAL EQUITIES U.S. shut for Juneteenth; Asia trades thin and soft

U.S. cash equity markets were closed on Friday, 19 June for the Juneteenth holiday, so the Dow (51,564.70), S&P 500 (7,500.58) and NASDAQ (26,517.93) levels carried in the brief reflect the prior session’s close. Asian markets traded in holiday-thinned conditions, with the MSCI Asia Pacific Index down as much as 1.3%, dragged by Samsung Electronics and BHP. The KOSPI (−1.8%) and SENSEX (−0.8%) led declines; the Nikkei firmed and ASX 200, KLCI and Jakarta edged higher.

In the U.K., May retail sales rose 1.2% m/m (vs. +0.5% expected), rebounding from a revised −1.0% in April on warm weather and retailer promotions and lifting the annual pace to +3.2%.

Analysis. With Wall Street offline, regional risk appetite set the tone for the PSE — thin volumes and a cautious Asia bias compounded the domestic, rate-driven selling. No direct single-name read-through; the global backdrop argues for selectivity rather than broad beta exposure into a holiday-truncated week.

> 🟡 NEUTRAL — Global beta — Holiday-distorted prints; await a full U.S. session for cleaner direction.

BSP · RATES BSP hikes 25bp to 4.75% — a second straight move — and flags more

The Monetary Board raised the target reverse-repurchase rate by 25bp to 4.75% on Thursday, 18 June, with the overnight deposit and lending facilities moved to 4.25% and 5.25% — the second consecutive hike after April’s 25bp increase. Governor Remolona cited strong, broadening inflation pressure from elevated global oil and fertiliser prices feeding domestic fuel and food costs, with core inflation still rising. The BSP lifted its 2026 average-inflation forecast to about 6.4% and 2027 to roughly 4.5%, both above the 2–4% target, with a return to target only by 2028. The decision was not unanimous; a 50bp move was considered and set aside in favour of “baby steps.”

The PSEi closed the Friday session down 0.29% as higher prospective fixed-income yields dulled equity appeal; the PHL 10-year backed up to ~7.00%.

Analysis. The rate path is the dominant domestic theme. Banks are the clearest beneficiaries of a higher-for-longer policy rate via wider margins — reflected Friday in the heavy foreign buying of BDO and BPI. The flip side is valuation pressure on rate-sensitive REITs (AREIT, RCR, MREIT, CREIT) and leveraged property and holding names. We keep a barbell: accumulate quality banks into the tightening, stay selective on yield plays until the oil/peso picture clears.

> 🟢 ACCUMULATE — Banks (rate beneficiaries) — Re-rating leverage to a higher policy rate; BDO/BPI drew the day’s biggest foreign inflows.

> 🟡 MONITOR — REITs & rate-sensitives — Rising local yields cap near-term upside; revisit on an oil/peso turn.

BTr · FIXED INCOME Treasury to sell ₱60B of bonds on 23 June

The Bureau of the Treasury will offer ₱40B of 6.375% bonds due 2030 and ₱20B of 5.925% bonds due 2036 on Tuesday, 23 June. The auction lands one session after this report and just days after the BSP hike, with the PHL 10-year yield near 7.00%.

Analysis. The result is a clean read on local-curve demand and how much of the hawkish shift is already priced. Strong bid-to-cover and contained awarded yields would steady REIT and property sentiment; a soft auction or higher tail would reinforce the rate overhang. A near-term signpost worth watching for fixed-income and rate-sensitive equity positioning.

> 🟡 MONITOR — Local curve — Auction demand is a live read-through for REIT/property valuations.

Corporate

GLO · AC Globe extends gains on the Mynt (GCash) IPO catalyst

Globe Telecom closed at ₱1,800 on Friday, up 5.9% on the week from ₱1,700 — outpacing the services sector (+1.8%) and the PSEi (+3.8% for the week) — after its board approved the filing of a registration statement and PSE listing application for the IPO of affiliate Mynt, Inc., parent of GCash. The offer would represent about 12% of Mynt's post-IPO shares (primary and secondary, ₱0.03 par) and is widely reported to target roughly $1B–$1.5B in proceeds at an $8B-plus valuation, with a possible Q4-2026 listing led by JP Morgan, Morgan Stanley, UBS, HSBC and Jefferies. At that size it would rival Monde Nissin's 2021 deal as the largest Philippine IPO on record. Ownership runs roughly Globe ~35%, Ant Group ~34%, Ayala Corp. ~13%, MUFG ~8%, with Warburg Pincus and others holding the balance. Mynt's attributable equity earnings to Globe reached ₱6.1B in 2025 (+64% y/y), around a fifth of Globe's pre-tax income and, by some house estimates, near a third of Globe's valuation.

Analysis. This is the value-unlock catalyst our standing thesis has flagged. A listing crystallises a market price for GCash that is currently embedded — and arguably under-credited — inside Globe, and reaches a 94-million user base that could broaden the PSE's investor pool. Read-through extends to Ayala Corp., which holds Mynt directly (~13%) and via Globe, reinforcing the deep-value parent narrative as it continues to lift its stake in the group. Watch the float mechanics, pricing band and listing window; Timson pegs Globe support at ₱1,730–1,750 and resistance ₱1,830–1,860.

> 🟢 ACCUMULATE — GLO — Mynt monetisation is a multi-quarter re-rating catalyst; accumulate on dips toward ₱1,730–1,750 support.

> 🟢 ACCUMULATE — AC — Direct + indirect Mynt exposure feeds the deep-value, sum-of-parts thesis; parent continues to accumulate group assets.

DITO DITO says foreign entrants unlikely to derail growth plans

DITO downplayed the competitive threat from prospective foreign players entering under the Konektadong Pinoy Act, which lets qualified data-transmission participants build and operate networks without a legislative franchise and mandates infrastructure sharing; regulators have cited around seven interested foreign groups, each potentially investing ~$1.5B. Management argues its 5G standalone build and spectrum position (about 140 MHz vs. ~60 MHz each for Globe and PLDT), expanding fixed-wireless-access business and subscriber momentum (targeting ~16M subscribers and 1M FWA users) insulate its trajectory. DITO closed ₱0.73 on Friday (−1.35%), with modest foreign selling.

Analysis. The Konektadong Pinoy framework is a structural margin risk for all incumbents — GLO and TEL included — even if DITO frames itself as advantaged. DITO CME remains a high-beta, pre-profitability turnaround story carrying a large accumulated capital deficiency; the equity trades on narrative and funding visibility rather than earnings. We stay on the sidelines pending evidence of sustained EBITDA and a clearer balance-sheet path.

> 🟡 MONITOR — DITO — Speculative turnaround; needs durable EBITDA and funding clarity before a constructive stance.

> 🟡 MONITOR — GLO/TEL (regulatory) — Konektadong Pinoy is a longer-run competitive/margin overhang for incumbents.

DMC SEC clears DMCI residential arm's condotel rental-pool program

The SEC approved a rental-pool program from DMCI Homes covering 2,138 condotel units (Certificates of Participation) across Solmera Coast in Batangas and Moncello Crest in Benguet. Owners will earn a share of room revenues under a 10-year management contract that auto-renews; the projects are due for completion in February 2028 and August 2029. DMC closed ₱8.14 on Friday (about −3.1%) on foreign net selling of ~₱3.8M.

Analysis. A sensible, capital-light extension of DMCI Homes into recurring hospitality income that diversifies a property mix still dominated by mid-market residential sell-down. The earnings impact is back-ended to 2028–29 turnover and immaterial near term. DMC's day-to-day continues to track its coal (SCC) and construction-materials cycle; with Mining & Oil the worst sector Friday (−3.75%), the holding-co tape stayed soft.

🟡 NEUTRAL — DMC — Incrementally positive, long-dated optionality; thesis still driven by coal and construction cycles.

BPI BSP issues formal warning over prolonged digital-banking outages

The BSP has formally warned Bank of the Philippine Islands over multi-day disruptions across its digital banking channels, signalling it may impose supervisory actions and enforce regulatory accountability if service reliability is not restored. BPI nonetheless closed ₱100.20 on Friday and drew one of the day's largest foreign inflows (+₱103.3M) as the post-hike bank trade dominated sentiment.

Analysis. An operational-risk and reputational flag rather than a solvency or earnings issue, but one to track — sustained outages invite penalties, remediation spend and customer attrition in a franchise whose digital push is central to its growth story. For now the macro tailwind (higher-for-longer rates lifting NIMs) is outweighing the headline; we keep BPI on watch within a constructive sector stance and prefer BDO as the cleaner large-cap bank expression.

🟡 MONITOR — BPI (operational/governance) — Digital-reliability lapses carry supervisory and reputational risk; rate tailwind cushions for now.

🟢 ACCUMULATE — BDO (preferred bank) — Cleanest large-cap rate beneficiary; led foreign inflows Friday (+₱179.5M).

FAST / Logistics Chiongbian family moves to regain full ownership of Fast Logistics

The Chiongbian family is set to reacquire full ownership of Fast Logistics Group, consolidating control of one of the country's larger third-party logistics and distribution platforms. The transaction is a private ownership consolidation with no direct PSE-listed equity.

Analysis. No tradable single-name read-through, but the move underscores continued private capital flowing into Philippine logistics — a structural beneficiary of e-commerce and food-delivery growth. Read it as a sector signpost for listed adjacents in industrial property, warehousing-linked REITs and consumer-distribution names rather than an actionable idea.

🟡 NEUTRAL — Logistics sector — Private deal; thematic support for logistics/industrial-property exposure, no direct listed play.

ALCO Arthaland advances green residential portfolio

Arthaland is pushing ahead with its sustainability-certified residential pipeline, extending its niche positioning as a developer of premium green-certified projects. ALCO closed ₱0.445 on Friday on minimal turnover.

Analysis. A small-cap, low-liquidity developer differentiated by green-building credentials but carrying thin trading volumes and a tight free float. The strategy is sound for a premium niche, yet the equity is not a liquid index expression; suitable only for patient, small-position holders comfortable with illiquidity.

🟡 MONITOR — ALCO — Differentiated green niche; constrained by liquidity and float — small positions only.

ENERGY · NPC NPC targets full hybridization of power plants by 2028

The National Power Corp. is targeting full hybridization of its power plants — pairing conventional generation with renewables and storage — by 2028, part of the state push to cut fuel dependence and emissions across off-grid and missionary areas.

Analysis. A policy-level signal of sustained demand for renewables, hybrid systems and storage that supports the longer-run investment case for listed energy and RE names — ACEN, AP, SPNEC, CREC and the EU/REIT-adjacent power plays — even if there is no immediate earnings catalyst. With oil elevated, the structural shift toward domestic and renewable capacity gains added strategic weight.

🟡 MONITOR — RE/power names — Reinforces the renewables/hybrid build-out thesis (ACEN, AP, SPNEC, CREC); structural, not near-term.

RETAIL Essential retail seen resilient into Q3 despite inflation

Analysts expect essential-goods retail — supermarkets, drugstores and value formats — to stay resilient through the third quarter even as elevated inflation pressures discretionary spending, with consumers trading down toward staples and value channels. Separately, the rapid growth of food-delivery and e-commerce receipts continues to reshape Philippine consumer behaviour, though such receipts often omit vendor TINs and VAT breakdowns, a compliance gap drawing regulatory attention.

Analysis. Supports a defensive tilt within consumer: staples-skewed retailers (PGOLD, RRHI, food names like CNPF, URC, MONDE) are better insulated from the inflation squeeze than discretionary formats. Note Puregold saw heavy foreign selling Friday (−₱122.7M) despite the defensive thesis — macro de-risking, not a franchise concern. We favour staples exposure while consumer purchasing power stays under pressure.

🟢 ACCUMULATE — Defensive staples — Trade-down dynamics favour PGOLD/RRHI/CNPF; accumulate quality staples on macro-driven weakness.
