GLOBAL MARKETS

Wall Street sold off sharply in the US session of Thursday, Nov 5 (Dow −3.44%, S&P 500 −4.36%, Nasdaq −5.52%); the desk did not mark the levels as close or live, and the file was saved after the US close. The desk adds that the sell-off wiped out Wednesday's post-election rally, pushed the Nasdaq into correction territory and was tech's worst session since 2020 amid a broad pullback in AI-linked names (desk notes, not independently verified), and that US initial jobless claims fell to a 57-year low of 189,000 while productivity rose 3.6% annualised. The Bank of England is reported to have raised its benchmark rate 25bp to 4%, its first hike since August 2023. Asia closed mixed on Nov 5: Hang Seng (+3.67%), SENSEX (+2.60%), Australia (+2.61%), Jakarta (+2.25%), Malaysia (+1.19%), Singapore (+0.52%) and Vietnam (+0.44%) rose, while the KOSPI (−5.28%), Taiwan (−3.20%), Nikkei (−1.79%), Thailand (−0.27%) and Shanghai (−0.10%) fell. The desk ties the Korean and Taiwanese weakness to worries about AI-infrastructure regulation under a Democrat-led Congress, and Japanese autos (Toyota, Honda) were up more than 5% on tariff-relief hopes (desk). Regional FX: the peso and the baht led gains among emerging-market currencies and local bond yields fell in most emerging markets (desk X post).

PHILIPPINES STRATEGY

A broad rally takes the PSEi to a new eight-session closing high, but the US sell-off after the close puts it to an immediate test. The PSEi gained 83.22 points to 5,778.14, reclaiming the Oct 27 close (5,761.19) and extending Wednesday's 70.75-point rebound. Unlike Nov 4, when Financials did the lifting and decliners outnumbered advancers, this advance was broad: 122 advancers to 74 decliners, the equal-weighted PSEi-30 up 1.56% against 1.46% for the cap-weighted index, and three of six sector indices up more than 2%. Foreigners were net buyers for a second day (+₱565.7M), though activity thinned to 48% of turnover from 64%.

What the tape shows

- Rotation, not just a bounce. Financials (−1.04%) gave back part of Wednesday's 3.82% as MBT (−3.17%) and BPI (−2.40%) fell, even as foreigners bought both; money moved into Holding Firms (+4.14%: SM, JGS, AC), Industrial (+2.51%: JFC, MER, CNPF), Mining & Oil (+4.06%) and Property (+1.99%: SMPH +3.72%, ALI +2.50%).
- Foreign buying broadened. BDO (+₱203.0M), SM (+₱88.2M), SMPH (+₱66.8M), MER (+₱62.9M) and MBT (+₱58.0M) led a +₱565.7M day; GLO (−₱70.0M) was the only sale above ₱20M.
- Results are not driving price. CNPF rose 5.84% on a headline 46% fall in quarterly profit, ALI rose 2.50% on a headline 18% fall in nine-month profit, and URC was flat (−0.08%) on an 11% profit rise; the desk supplied no market commentary to explain the moves.
- Macro (desk): October CPI accelerated to 7.8% YoY from 7.2% in September, a 44-month high driven by transport costs and utilities; the BSP, which raised its policy rate 50bp to 5.50% on Oct 22, is expected to hike again on Dec 17. The PHL 10-year yield rose 7.2bp to 8.141%.

Risks to watch (desk items, not verified)

- US sell-off after the PSE close: the Dow (−3.44%), S&P 500 (−4.36%) and Nasdaq (−5.52%) fell after Thursday's PSE session ended, so Friday is the first PSE session to react; Asia's Nov 5 closes (KOSPI −5.28%, TWSE −3.20%, Nikkei −1.79%) already showed regional dispersion.
- Inflation and rates: CPI at 7.8% against a 5.50% policy rate keeps the real policy rate negative (see Learn) and points to more hikes, a headwind for rate-sensitive Property and banks.
- Oil: Brent rebounded 3.88% to $98.29 even as the desk describes a steep weekly loss; a renewed spike would pressure the peso and importers.

LEARN — INFLATION, REAL RATES AND THE BSP

The concept. A central bank's policy rate is a nominal rate; what matters for borrowers and savers is the real rate, the nominal rate minus inflation. When inflation runs above the policy rate, the real rate is negative, which means money is still cheap relative to rising prices; that is why a central bank facing accelerating inflation tends to keep raising rates until the real rate turns positive. Bond yields are read the same way: a yield above inflation pays a positive real return.

Philippine rates (desk, Nov 5)	Level	Real rate (vs 7.8% CPI)
October CPI (YoY)	7.8% (September: 7.2%)	44-month high; rising
BSP policy rate	5.50% (+50bp on Oct 22)	−2.3 percentage points
PHL 10-year yield	8.141% (+7.2bp)	+0.3 percentage points
US 10-year yield (reference)	4.822%	Not comparable: US inflation not supplied

Why it matters today. The desk expects another hike on Dec 17. With the policy rate 2.3 points below inflation and inflation still rising, the gap argues for further tightening, which usually weighs on borrowing-sensitive businesses (Property, banks' credit quality) and lifts bond yields. Yet Property rose 1.99% and the PSEi 1.46% on the day, a reminder that markets weigh rates against earnings, foreign flows and global moves such as the US sell-off.

How to use it. (1) Subtract the latest CPI from the policy rate before judging whether policy is "tight" or "easy". (2) Check the direction of inflation, not only its level (7.2% to 7.8% is acceleration). (3) Compare long-term bond yields with inflation to see the real return on offer. (4) Watch rate-sensitive sectors on the day of a CPI print or policy meeting. Takeaway: a 5.50% policy rate sounds high but is below 7.8% inflation, so the next move in rates, not their level, is what markets will price.
