ACTIONABLE HIGHLIGHTS · THE CALL

The market steadied: PSEi +0.22% to 6,075.07 (+13.26), bouncing off Friday's break with breadth back to balanced (96/95) and a rare EM net-inflow — foreigners bought a small +P38.25M while Taiwan saw $-$1.0B$. But it is fragile and still ICT-led (+P281M), against continued block-driven selling in AC -P175M and BDO -P148M. The macro vise is tightening: peso at a record P62.83, PHL 10-yr at a new-high 7.53%, US 10-yr near 5%, oil back up, and metals falling.

ACCUMULATE — WHERE FLOW AND CATALYSTS ALIGN

- AEV — The standout after ICT: foreign bought +P79.4M (2nd big day, +3.2% to P37.70) as Aboitiz Construction and Acciona formed a facilities-management JV. Accumulate — infra/airports/facilities diversification with flow behind it.
- MER — Foreign +P19.8M; the BIR scrapped the 12% VAT on system-loss charges (demand-supportive), and MER is pivoting earnings toward solar, battery and LNG (Terra Solar 2 optionality with Actis). Accumulate; dip-buy < P470.
- ALI — Foreign +P31.0M (2nd day, +0.4%) on upward fair-value revisions (healing residential/commercial demand); parent AC bought 261,500 ALI shares at P15.006 — a visible floor. Accumulate.

MONITOR — CLEARER STORIES, TOUGHER TAPE

- AT / DHI — The Tampakan structure is now explicit: DHI took 20.43% of Atlas from APO (P857M + P3.25B commitment), handing the Sy group 54.48% control; combined, Atlas+Tampakan is $\sim 28\times$ Atlas's copper. But AT fell -2.3% as copper slid; ASM results are still pending on PSE Edge. Accumulate on dips, mind the metals.
- Banks (BPI vs BDO/MBT) — A split tape: BPI drew +P40.3M of foreign buying on weakness, while BDO (-P147.6M) and MBT (-P36.4M) stayed under distribution. Prefer BPI on relative strength; the 7.53% yield/record-low peso cap the sector.
- TEL — PLDT is advancing the VITRO data-centre REIT to raise up to P24.2B to cut debt — a concrete deleveraging catalyst. Flow soft (-P4.6M, -1.0%); accumulate on weakness.

CAUTION — THE MACRO VISE & METALS

- Rates / FX — Peso at a record P62.83, PHL 10-yr 7.53% (new high), US 10-yr near 5%, dollar broadly strong, and a Fed hike expected this week. EM assets are under pressure — stay defensive and watch the 6,000 line.
- Mining / metals — Gold fell below $4,300 and copper -2.6% ; foreign flipped to selling APX (-P12.0M). PHL gold/copper names (APX, PX after $+8\%$) face a headwind — trim into strength.
- AGI — Analyst downgrades and a cut fair value to P7.15 on board-leadership changes and a cautious outlook; foreign -P2.6M. Avoid.

Prior close vs. latest close. US finished slightly lower as the 10-yr Treasury pulled back after breaching 5%; chip/AI names and EM sold off. PSEi bucked a weak Asian tape (KOSPI −3.0%).

The worst mix for the local tape: oil rebounded (WTI +2.5%, Brent +2.0%; Bernstein flags a possible $120–150 on chronic undersupply) while metals fell — gold –1.7% below $4,300 and copper –2.6%. That squeezes a fuel-importer on inflation and undercuts the mining leadership (APX, AT, PX) at the same time.

PHILIPPINES STRATEGY

Macro. The external vise is tightening — the peso hit a record ₱62.83, the PHL 10-yr rose to a new-high 7.53%, the US 10-yr flirted with 5%, and a Fed hike is expected this week — while oil rebounded and metals fell. Encouragingly, the local tape stabilised: the PSEi held above 6,000 on balanced breadth and a small net foreign inflow, one of the few positive EM prints on a day Taiwan lost $1.0B. But the inflow is thin and ICT-dependent, so the base remains fragile.

Where we lean in. We stay defensive but lean into names where flow and catalysts align: AEV (the day's big foreign buy and a new facilities JV), MER (VAT relief plus the solar/battery/LNG pivot; dip-buy < ₱470), and ALI (buying flow, fair-value upgrades and parent support). We prefer BPI within the banks, and treat TEL's VITRO REIT as a real deleveraging catalyst. We are more cautious on the miners into a gold-below-$4,300, copper-down tape — the Atlas/DHI structure is transformational but the near-term metals move argues for patience. Avoid AGI. Keep the 6,000 line in view.

Five of six sectors recovered green; only Industrial (–0.31%) lagged. The rebound was broad but shallow — a stabilisation rather than a decisive turn.

FOREIGN FUND FLOW

Net foreign +₱38.25M — a marginal inflow, and one of the few positive EM prints of the day (PH +$0.6M vs. Taiwan – $1.0B). But it is thin and top-heavy: ICT +₱281M and AEV +₱79M carried it against block-driven selling in AC –₱175M and BDO –₱148M. Note BPI drew +₱40M even as the other banks were sold.

Mining dominated turnover — PX surged +8% to ₱12.38 (₱298.2M), with APX, AT and OGP all active, though into a falling-metals tape. BDO and AC turnover reflects heavy foreign-driven churn (block crosses), not accumulation.

BDO crossed ₱282.6M across three blocks and AC ₱141.0M across four — the source of both names' heavy foreign-selling prints. CIC also crossed ₱31.6M (3.0M sh), dwarfing its ₱33k regular turnover. (Total value is ₱785.88M — the brief's "₱785.55B" is a typo.)

CORPORATE STANCE CARDS

AEV · Foreign buyers pile in; a new facilities-management JV

Aboitiz Equity Ventures was the strongest large-cap flow after ICT — foreign buying of +₱79.4M on ₱121.7M turnover, closing +3.2% at ₱37.70 — as Aboitiz Construction and Acciona formed a facilities-management joint venture, extending the group's infrastructure and services footprint alongside its airport network.

Analysis. Two consecutive sessions of heavy foreign accumulation, now paired with a fresh JV, mark AEV as the clearest large-cap accumulate. The infrastructure/airport/facilities diversification is a multi-year value driver and the flow is confirming it; we add on strength here rather than wait, using pullbacks toward ₱36 to build.

Stance: ACCUMULATE

MER · VAT relief and an energy-transition pivot

Meralco drew foreign buying of +₱19.8M (close ₱485.40) after the BIR removed the 12% VAT on the allowable system-loss charge in electricity bills — effective immediately, lowering consumer power costs. Strategically, MER is shifting its earnings mix from regulated distribution toward solar, battery storage and LNG, and MGen is open to partnering Actis again on the (still early-stage) Terra Solar 2 project.

Analysis. The VAT removal is demand-supportive at the margin, and the generation/renewables pivot broadens the growth story beyond the regulated core. With foreign flow turning buyer, we are constructive; the desk would dip-buy below ₱470 and accumulate into the transition narrative.

Stance: ACCUMULATE · DIP-BUY < ₱470

AT / DHI · The Tampakan structure is now explicit — into a soft copper tape

The Atlas re-rating architecture is clearer: Dominion (DHI) acquired 20.43% of Atlas from Anglo Philippine (APO) for ₱857M cash plus a ₱3.25B total commitment, handing the Sy group 54.48% control; DHI is lifting its authorised capital ~9× (₱3.42B to ₱30B) and fixing the Indophil/Sonar merger at book-to-book value. Combined, Atlas + Tampakan would carry ~390,000 tpa of copper — about 28× Atlas standalone. AT closed -2.3% at ₱21.00 (foreign +₱14.9M); official 14 Sep ASM results are not yet posted on PSE Edge.

Analysis. The end-state is genuinely transformational, but the near term is a tug-of-war: a falling copper price (-2.6%) and pending vote confirmations against a landmark consolidation. We keep accumulate-on-dips with the ₱50 reference target, but size patiently — let the metals move and the ASM disclosure settle before adding aggressively.

Stance: ACCUMULATE ON DIPS · PT ₱50 · WATCH COPPER & ASM DISCLOSURE

ALI · Buying flow, fair-value upgrades and parent support

Ayala Land rose +0.4% to ₱15.12 with a second straight day of foreign buying (+₱31.0M), as analysts revised fair-value estimates higher on healing residential and commercial demand. Parent Ayala Corp also bought 261,500 ALI shares at an average ₱15.006 — a visible floor — even as AC itself saw heavy foreign selling.

Analysis. Flow, fundamentals and parent support now line up for the first time in weeks. A leadership transition in ALI's legal/data-privacy function is a governance item to monitor but not a thesis-breaker. We move ALI to a firmer Accumulate, with the AC buy price near ₱15.01 as a practical reference floor.

Stance: ACCUMULATE

Banks (BPI vs BDO / MBT) · A split tape under a record-low peso

The banks diverged sharply on flow: BPI drew +₱40.3M of foreign buying on weakness (close ₱102.30), while BDO shed -₱147.6M (its fourth heavy outflow, though it closed up on local buying and block crosses) and MBT -₱36.4M. The backdrop is punishing — a record-low peso (₱62.83) and a 7.53% 10-yr.

Analysis. We prefer BPI within the sector on its contrarian foreign accumulation, and stay cautious on BDO and MBT while the currency and yield pressure persists and the block-driven selling runs. A sustained peso stabilisation is the signal to turn more constructive on the group as a whole.

Stance: SELECTIVE — PREFER BPI; MONITOR BDO/MBT

TEL · VITRO data-centre REIT advances

PLDT is moving forward to list its VITRO data-centre division as a REIT, aiming to raise up to ₱24.2B to pay down debt. TEL closed -1.0% at ₱1,140 with foreign flow of -₱4.6M.

Analysis. A concrete monetisation of the data-centre platform plus a defensive dividend gives TEL a self-help deleveraging path that should narrow its valuation gap over time. We are constructive and accumulate on weakness, watching the REIT's pricing and timeline as the catalysts; near-term flow is soft in a risk-off tape.

Stance: ACCUMULATE ON WEAKNESS

FGEN · The Friday block was KKR's exit — overhang now known

The ₱25.8B First Gen block that crossed on Friday has been confirmed as KKR exiting its stake (per BusinessWorld). FGEN steadied on Monday, closing ₱23.85 (foreign -₱1.6M) after the -11.9% break, as the market digested the departure of the private-equity holder.

Analysis. Identifying the seller removes the worst of the uncertainty — a known, completed PE exit is cleaner than an unexplained crash — but the delisting question that first unsettled the stock is still open. We move FGEN from avoid to Monitor: the forced-seller overhang is gone, but we wait for clarity on any delisting or tender before taking a directional view.

Stance: MONITOR — OVERHANG CLEARED, DELISTING QUESTION OPEN
