AT A GLANCE — ACTIONABLE HIGHLIGHTS

Session snapshot PSEi 6,290.35 ▲ +12.40 (+0.20%) • Value ₱6.23B • Breadth 86 up / 90 down / 68 flat • Foreign ₱(327.51M) (net foreign selling)

- ▶ PSEi edged up 12.40 pts (+0.20%) to close at its 6,290.35 session high — but the advance was narrow and mega-cap-led: decliners (90) actually outnumbered advancers (86), and turnover was a light ₱6.23B.
- ▶ Domestic macro disappointed — Q2 GDP grew just 2.3% (a post-pandemic low, vs 2.9% consensus) — but a Wall Street rally on a weak US jobs report and vanished Fed-hike fears provided the supportive external lead.
- ▶ Foreigners were net sellers of ₱327.51M, and it was almost entirely a bank story: BDO (-₱228.9M) and BPI (-₱209.6M) bled ~₱438M between them, while ICT (+₱100.1M) and a resurgent ALI (+₱70.4M) drew the biggest inflows.
- ▶ ALI jumped to close at its ₱16.26 high on ₱70.4M of foreign buying as MSCI Standard-Index deletion fears recede — Ayala Corp's open-market buying is lifting free-float cap off the ₱76.0B floor. We move ALI toward ACCUMULATE.
- ▶ Gold breached US$4,300 and now trades near a record ~US$4,400/oz, yet foreigners took profits in Apex (-₱26.3M) and Nickel Asia (-₱19.0M); Atlas Mining bucked with +₱24.1M — stay selective, favour cash-flow leaders (OGP).
- ▶ PHL 10Y eased to 7.251% but stays above our 7% line — keep BDO/BPI/MBT on MONITOR. Separately, MER gets regulatory clarity as the ERC confirms a ₱0.59/kWh (₱9.5B) refund alongside revenue-neutral cost-recovery rulings.

THE CALL

The Philippine Stock Exchange index eked out a 0.20% gain on Friday, adding 12.40 points to close at 6,290.35 — right at its intraday high — in a session where a firm external lead did just enough to offset a disappointing domestic growth print. The advance was narrow: decliners (90) actually outnumbered advancers (86), and turnover was a still-light ₱6.23 billion, so the green headline masks a defensive, index-heavyweight-led tape rather than broad participation.

The tone took its cue from Wall Street, where equities rallied to fresh records after a surprisingly weak US jobs report all but erased fears of further Fed tightening; the Nasdaq climbed 1.2% and NVIDIA closed at US$223.96 (+2.27%), capping a gain of more than 10% on the week. A softer dollar and easier oil earlier in the week reinforced the risk-on mood. Against that constructive backdrop stood a sobering local data point — Philippine second-quarter GDP grew just 2.3%, a post-pandemic low and well below the 2.9% consensus — leaving the PSEi caught between a supportive global bid and a slowing home economy.

Beneath the flat-to-firm headline, leadership was defensive and property-led. Property (+0.99%) and Mining & Oil (+0.98%) topped the board while Financials (-0.54%) lagged as foreigners dumped the big banks. Net foreign selling of ₱327.51 million was almost entirely a bank story — BDO and BPI alone accounted for roughly ₱438 million of outflows — even as International Container (+₱100.1M) and a resurgent Ayala Land (+₱70.4M) absorbed heavy inflows. The rotation out of yield-sensitive lenders and into dollar earners and select property names is the session's clearest signal.

KLCI prints (1,737.15 → 1,735.75) sit within the index's valid ~1,700 range this session — no suppression required. Wall Street rallied to fresh records after a weak US jobs report (payrolls -23k) eased Fed-tightening fears; the Nasdaq rose 1.2% and NVIDIA closed at US$223.96 (+2.27%), up >10% on the week.

Oil firmed on the week, keeping energy a live inflation risk for the Philippines.

The DQR's peso conversion reference was USD1 = ₱60.815 (flat versus the prior session). PHL 10Y at 7.251% remains above our 7% bank-caution trigger despite the marginal easing; a soft US jobs report pulled the dollar lower against the euro and yen, and analysts see the peso rebounding after the weak US payrolls.

PHILIPPINES STRATEGY

Index 6,290.35 ▲ +12.40 (+0.20%) — 30 constituents. Net foreign flow shows the desk's edge.

Friday's 2.3% GDP print reframes the domestic macro. Growth slowed from 2.8% in Q1 and missed consensus by a wide margin — the weakest reading since 2009 outside the pandemic — as gross capital formation contracted, led by a 32.4% collapse in public construction amid graft-related scrutiny, while household consumption grew a subdued 2.8%. Encouragingly, exports rose 12.2% and July inflation eased for a third straight month to 6.2%. For the BSP, weak growth argues against aggressive tightening — though the market still expects a final 25-bp hike this month to anchor the peso, which would likely mark the end of the cycle.

The PHL 10-year eased marginally to 7.251% but has held above 7% for a sustained stretch, and Friday's price action showed exactly why we keep the banks on MONITOR: foreigners hit BDO (-₱228.9M) and BPI (-₱209.6M) hard, dragging Financials to the bottom of the sector table even though franchise earnings remain healthy. We would wait for a decisive break back below 7% — or a clear BSP signal that the tightening cycle has peaked — before turning constructive on the big lenders. Note the divergence within the group: China Bank drew +₱12.5M of foreign buying and Metrobank's outflow was comparatively contained.

The more actionable story is the rotation. Ayala Land's sharp rebound — closing at its ₱16.26 high on ₱70.4M of foreign buying as MSCI-deletion fears recede and parent Ayala Corp keeps buying — looks like a genuine sentiment inflection in the most-shortest deep-value name on the board; we move our stance from deletion-watch toward Accumulate. ICT remains the premier dollar earner and foreign-flow anchor. In mining, record gold near US$4,400/oz keeps the complex bid, but Friday's two-sided flows — profit-taking in Apex and Nickel Asia against strong buying in Atlas Mining — argue for selectivity over a blanket bet; we favour cash-flow leaders (OGP) and Atlas on its foreign bid over the higher-beta speculatives.

CORPORATE UPDATES

ALI Ayala Land, Inc. ₱16.26

ALI jumps to a session-high close on ₱70.4M foreign buying as MSCI-deletion fears recede

Ayala Land rebounded sharply on Friday, closing at its intraday high of ₱16.26 — up roughly 6% from the prior ₱15.32 close — on the day's second-largest foreign inflow of +₱70.4 million. The move reflects growing conviction that ALI may avoid deletion from the MSCI Philippines Standard Index at the August quarterly review: parent Ayala Corp's ongoing open-market share buying is lifting ALI's free-float market capitalisation away from the ~₱76.0-billion floor (two-thirds of the standard free-float entry requirement) that had put it in the danger zone. MSCI's buffer-zone framework means no abrupt, unannounced deletion, and the recovery in price and volume directly eases the risk (per First Metro Securities / Rappler / desk).

Analysis. We have argued this is a stock-market event, not a business event — ALI still controls nearly ₱1 trillion of assets and a dominant recurring-income platform (malls, offices, hotels, estates) trading near ~0.6x book. Friday's decisive foreign bid, closing at the high, looks like a genuine sentiment inflection in the most-shortened deep-value name on the board. We upgrade our operating stance from deletion-watch to Accumulate, while keeping the August MSCI announcement on close watch for any residual passive-flow noise.

Stance: ACCUMULATE — deep-value inflection; parent buying and receding index risk change the risk-reward.

ICT Int'l Container Terminal Services ₱1,000.00

ICT dominates the tape again with ₱2.01B turnover and the day's largest foreign inflow (+ ₱100.1M)

International Container Terminal Services was, once more, the market's centre of gravity — ₱2.01 billion of value (roughly a third of the entire ₱6.23-billion tape) and the single largest net foreign inflow of the session at +₱100.1 million. The stock closed flat at ₱1,000.00 after touching ₱1,006 intraday. ICTSI's global port network — anchored by the MICT concession secured to 2063 and a diversifying, dollar-denominated earnings base — continues to make it the preferred institutional vehicle for foreign flows into the Philippine market; chairman Enrique Razon, Jr. recently topped the 2026 Forbes Philippines rich list on the franchise's expansion.

Analysis. In a session defined by heavy foreign selling of the banks, ICT's ability to absorb ₱100 million of net buying underscores its role as the market's dollar-earner of choice and its two-way liquidity. Fundamentals and flows point the same way. We continue to treat pullbacks as accumulation opportunities.

BANKS BDO • BPI • MBT *BDO ₱122.00 • BPI ₱101.00 • MBT ₱66.20Foreigners dump the big banks as PHL 10Y holds above 7%

Financials were the worst-performing sector (-0.54%) as foreign investors sold the big lenders aggressively — BDO (-₱228.9M) and BPI (-₱209.6M) alone accounted for roughly ₱438 million of net outflows, with Metrobank adding -₱44.3M. The PHL 10-year yield eased only marginally to 7.251% and remains above the 7% level at which we grow cautious on rate-sensitive names.

There were bright spots: China Bank bucked the group with +₱12.5M of foreign buying, and recent franchise earnings remain healthy across the sector. BPI separately flagged a year-on-year decline in net income for both the quarter and year-to-date.

Analysis. Bank fundamentals are solid, but the tape is telling us positioning matters more than earnings right now — passive and foreign flows are the swing factor while long yields sit above 7% and Q2 GDP prints at a post-pandemic low. We keep BDO and BPI on MONITOR pending a sustained move back below 7% or a clear signal that the BSP tightening cycle has peaked; within the group we prefer relative-flow resilience (CBC, and MBT on a contained outflow).

Stance: MONITOR (BDO, BPI) — await sub-7% 10Y and a BSP cycle-peak signal.

MER Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) ₱494.00ERC clears a ₱9.5B (₱0.59/kWh) refund alongside revenue-neutral cost-recovery — regulatory overhang lifts

The Energy Regulatory Commission confirmed a ₱9.5-billion consumer refund for Meralco — an average ₱0.34/kWh (about ₱0.59/kWh for residential customers) applied over six months — reflecting over-recovered distribution charges. In parallel, the ERC authorised Meralco to collect ~₱8.7 billion of under-recovered pass-through costs over 36 months (roughly ₱0.07/kWh); crucially, those pass-throughs are revenue-neutral for the distribution utility, flowing to generators and transmission providers rather than to Meralco's bottom line. Shares have been firm on the refund and cost-recovery rulings, which together resolve much of the regulatory uncertainty that overhung the stock; MER closed at ₱494.00, though foreigners took ₱25.1M of profits on the day (per BusinessWorld / GMA / ERC).

Analysis. The key positive is clarity, not a step-change in earnings — the pass-through recoveries do not lift core profit, but the twin rulings remove the tail risk from the earlier push to strip system-loss charges and reset the regulatory narrative to a more orderly footing. With the overhang easing, we shift from a defensive Monitor toward a more constructive stance, mindful that a pending 2027–2030 distribution-rate application is the next catalyst to track.

Stance: MONITOR → constructive — regulatory overhang lifting; watch the 2027–2030 rate reset.

OGP OceanaGold (Philippines), Inc. ₱34.85OceanaGold begins Wharekirauponga development; Q2 gold output of 138,800 oz

OceanaGold reported second-quarter gold production of 138,800 ounces and began development of its Wharekirauponga (WKP) project, extending a strong operating run for the group (per company/desk). The listed Philippine unit — IPO'd at ₱13.33 in May 2024 — has compounded rapidly: Q1 2026 net income surged on higher realised gold and copper prices at the Didipio mine, and full-year guidance sits at 85,000–105,000 oz gold and 13,000–15,000 MT copper at an all-in sustaining cost of roughly US$975–1,100/oz. OGP drew +₱1.0M of net foreign buying and closed at ₱34.85 as bullion pushed to a fresh record near US$4,400/oz.

Analysis. OGP remains the cleanest listed proxy for the gold rally, and the macro backdrop is squarely supportive — record bullion, a softer dollar and shifting rate expectations. With strong free cash flow, a disciplined cost base and a growth pipeline (Didipio plus WKP), the earnings-to-price case stays compelling while gold holds its bid. We prefer it to the higher-beta local speculatives.

Stance: ACCUMULATE — best-in-class gold cash-flow story leveraged to record bullion.

GOLD Philippine Gold & Base-Metal Miners APX ₱14.84 · PX ₱9.96 · AT ₱15.90 · NIKL ₱4.20 · OGP ₱34.85

Record gold (~US$4,400/oz) keeps the complex bid, but Friday's foreign flows were two-sided

Gold breached US$4,300 and printed a fresh record near US$4,400/oz, lifting Mining & Oil to +0.98% — the day's second-best sector. But the local flows were far from uniform: Atlas Mining (AT) was heavily traded (₱226.6M value) and drew the sector's strongest foreign bid at +₱24.1M, while foreigners took profits in Apex Mining (APX, -₱26.3M) and Nickel Asia (NIKL, -₱19.0M). Philex (PX) turned over ₱22.4M (-₱0.3M) and OceanaGold (OGP) drew net buying (+₱1.0M). China rare-earth and strategic-metal names also caught a bid on US-China tension headlines.

Analysis. We stay constructive on the complex while bullion holds its bid, but Friday shows why selectivity beats a blanket bet — foreigners rotated within the group rather than buying it wholesale. We favour cash-flow leaders and names with a clear foreign bid (OGP for gold; Atlas on Friday's flow) over the higher-beta speculatives, and treat base-metal exposure (NIKL) as more a cyclical hedge than a gold play.

Stance: SELECTIVE ACCUMULATE — favour cash-flow leaders (OGP) and the foreign-bid name (AT).

DMC DMCI Holdings, Inc. ₱7.26

DMCI posts a modest Q1 dip but draws the day's third-largest foreign inflow (+₱29.1M)

DMCI Holdings reported first-quarter 2026 net income easing about 2% to roughly ₱4.87–4.9 billion, as stable margins cushioned softer coal, power and construction revenues, offset by gains in real estate, nickel, off-grid power and cement (per company/desk). The diversified holdco drew a strong +₱29.1 million of net foreign buying — the third-largest inflow of the session — closing flat at ₱7.26. The group's property arm (DMCI-PDI) is separately expanding into offices via the ₱1.2-billion One Fortis Plaza in Makati, adding a recurring-income leg to a cash-generative portfolio.

Analysis. A 2% earnings dip against a soft macro backdrop is a resilient result, and the composition — commodity softness offset by real estate, nickel and cement — is exactly the diversification we value. On the group's cash generation, dividend track record and Friday's decisive institutional inflow, the name continues to screen attractively.

Stance: ACCUMULATE — cash-generative, dividend-friendly holdco with resilient earnings and a growing recurring-income leg.

GLO Globe Telecom, Inc. ₱1,725.00Globe 1H profit falls 11% to ₱11.0B despite record service revenues; data-centre push in focus

Globe Telecom's first-half net profit fell 11% year-on-year to ₱11.0 billion even as service revenues hit a record, dragged by lower contributions from fintech venture Mynt and higher financing costs; core net income slipped to ₱10.2 billion, missing expectations on weaker equity earnings and elevated expenses (per BusinessWorld / desk). Management is leaning into data centres as AI and cloud demand grow, positioning the infrastructure build as a medium-term growth leg. GLO closed up +0.29% at ₱1,725.00 with +₱11.7M of net foreign buying.

Analysis. The headline earnings miss is real, but it is largely a Mynt-and-financing-cost story rather than a deterioration in the core connectivity franchise, and Friday's foreign buying suggests the market is looking through it. The data-centre pivot is strategically sound but capital-intensive and slow to monetise. We stay neutral pending clearer evidence that record top-line converts back into bottom-line growth.

Stance: HOLD / MONITOR — record revenues, but watch Mynt drag, financing costs and data-centre execution.

DHI Dominion Holdings, Inc. ₱11.60Dominion extends an ~800% rally on bets it becomes the vehicle for major mining-asset infusions

Dominion Holdings (DHI) was the eighth most active name by value (₱157.15M) and among the most volatile issues on the board — opening at ₱8.98, spiking to ₱13.20 and settling at ₱11.60 on 14.6 million shares, with +₱16.8M of net foreign buying. The stock has now extended a roughly 800% rally from about ₱1.25 in mid-January on speculation that it will serve as the corporate vehicle for a major mining-asset infusion, amid an ownership transition, a high-profile board reshuffling and the involvement of two of the country's wealthiest families (per desk/ market chatter).

Analysis. This is a high-conviction event/momentum trade, not an earnings story — the price already discounts a successful asset injection that has not been formally confirmed, and the intraday range (₱8.73–₱13.20) shows how quickly sentiment can swing. We flag it for awareness rather than endorse it: any position should be sized as speculative risk capital, with a clear stop, pending concrete disclosure of the asset transaction.

Stance: SPECULATIVE — HIGH RISK; event-driven momentum, extreme volatility. Await formal disclosure before committing.

URC Universal Robina Corp. ₱61.85URC opens a ₱2.75B Batangas manufacturing plant, but foreigners sold ₱26.1M on the day

Universal Robina opened a ₱2.75-billion manufacturing plant in Batangas, adding domestic capacity as it scales its branded-consumer and snack-foods business (per BusinessWorld). The stock was the sixth most active by value (₱182.06M) and rose +2.57% intraday to close at ₱61.85 — yet it drew the session's sixth-largest foreign outflow at -₱26.1 million, and featured a 1.0-million-share block cross at ₱60.20 (below the regular close). The divergence between a firm price and heavy foreign selling warrants attention.

Analysis. The capacity investment is a sensible long-term move that supports volume growth, but URC operates in the same inflation-squeezed staples environment pressuring peers, and Friday's foreign selling — against a rising price — suggests distribution into strength. We stay neutral, preferring Century Pacific (CNPF) within branded consumer for its cleaner core-earnings momentum.

Stance: HOLD — capacity expansion positive long term, but foreign distribution into strength keeps us neutral.

SMARTWATCH SUMMARY

- ▶ PH Q2 GDP: Growth slowed to a post-pandemic low of 2.3% (from 2.8% in Q1; H1 at 2.6%), as gross capital formation contracted and public construction fell 32.4%; government now needs ~4.4% H2 growth to hit its downgraded 3.5–4.5% full-year target.
- ▶ Rates & inflation: July inflation eased for a third straight month to 6.2%; a final 25-bp BSP hike is still seen this month despite the growth slump, likely marking the end of the cycle. PHL 10Y at 7.251%.
- ▶ Bond supply: The Bureau of the Treasury will auction ₱30 billion of 7-year bonds on Aug 11; T-bill and bond rates are seen easing on the soft growth and inflation data.
- ▶ US & global: A weak US July payrolls print (-23k jobs) erased Fed-hike fears and drove Wall Street to fresh records — S&P 500 record high, Nasdaq +1.2%, NVIDIA +2.27% (up >10% on the week). Japan's defence white paper flags China's military build-up.
- ▶ Share buybacks (8/7/26): FRUIT, OPM, AGI, SM and SMPH disclosed buyback activity — a supportive undertone for index heavyweights (SM, SMPH, AGI).
