PSEi % change taken verbatim from the PSE DQR sectoral summary (+2.11%). The desk's section 8 PSE headline (+0.8% to 5,663.17, ₱6.99B, 91 / 89 / 66) is the Oct 15 session and was overridden by the Oct 16 DQR.

Wall Street fell on Friday (Dow −0.34%, S&P 500 −1.09%, Nasdaq −2.14%) as renewed tech weakness and doubts about the AI trajectory returned (desk item, not verified); this happened after the PSE closed, so it is the overnight signal for today. The desk also flags a US budget gap nearing $2 trillion, which keeps Treasury yields and Fed expectations in focus. Asia closed mostly higher on Friday: Nikkei +1.39%, KOSPI +2.05%, ASX 200 +1.00%, Sensex +0.56%, TWSE +0.30%, Hang Seng +0.52% and Shanghai +0.24%. Indonesia is the outlier: the desk pastes the JCI at 5,185.11, down 11.5% (pasted −11.57%), beside a headline that MSCI is weighing Indonesia's exclusion from its global benchmarks over governance concerns, including non-transparent ownership and price manipulation. Hong Kong is closed today, India closes Tuesday and Thailand Friday. The KLCI and SET rows are N/A (corrupted and stale pastes).

Crude surged; softs split. WTI closed Friday at $101.41 (+3.51%) and Brent at $109.86 (+3.72%), above $100 and $105 respectively; the priors equal the Oct 15 closes, so crude reversed the Friday-morning dip pasted in our last edition (WTI $97.37). Gold $4,181.10 (+0.26%), silver $57.31 (+0.26%) and COMEX copper 657.25¢/lb (+0.26%) edged up. On the PSE, Mining & Oil rose 2.44% (PX +3.99%, APX +3.86%, AT +2.78%), though TUBIG's 3.57B shares dominate the sector's volume.

PSE read-through: higher crude raises import bills (peso and inflation risk); Mining & Oil gained 457.36 points on ₱332.9M.

FX & RATES

The peso firmed 0.12% to 62.98 per dollar (derived prior 63.05, consistent with the DQR reference rate of 63.060), but it remains near the record low: a headline says it touched 63.231 on bets of a Fed rate hike (desk link; date and article not confirmed). Who it hurts / who it helps (framework, not desk view): importers and dollar-debt payers bear the cost, and higher oil adds to it; exporters, BPOs and remittance-receiving households gain. The PHL 10-year rose 4.1bp to 7.979% (derived prior 7.938% matches our last edition, which supports that level over the 8.01% quoted earlier). The US 10-year is 5.098% (+0.22% pasted; the pasted +0.11 does not match, so the bp move is approximate). USD-JPY is 158.02, USD-CNY 6.6865 and EUR-USD 1.1239. Tuesday's PHP 30B auction of 8% 2031 bonds is the next test of yield demand.

A strong close, but narrower than the headline. The PSEi gained 2.11% and foreigners bought for a second day, yet the cap-weighted gain is twice the equal-weighted 1.09%, ICT supplied more than all of the net foreign buying (excluding it the issue-level sum is only +₱31.2M), and ₱3.25B of block crosses inflated turnover. The desk supplied no market stance, so we show levels rather than a recommendation. Risks have moved to the overnight tape: Wall Street's Friday sell-off, higher crude, a peso still near its record low and Indonesia's MSCI scare.

What the tape shows

- Services and banks led: Services +4.09% (ICT +4.81%, TEL +4.17%) and Financials +1.51% (BPI +3.53%, BDO +1.94%); Property +2.11% and Mining & Oil +2.44% joined. Holding Firms (−0.12%) lagged.
- Foreign buying was concentrated: ICT (+₱347.2M), TEL (+₱97.9M), BPI (+₱86.3M) and MER (+₱53.9M) supplied the top four net buys; the heaviest sellers were MBT (−₱108.3M) and TUBIG (−₱105.1M).
- Standing house rule: banks stay on watch while the PHL 10-year is above 7% (7.979% today); the Financials gain came on higher yields and large single-name flows (BPI, MBT).

Risks to watch (desk items, not verified)

- Overnight tape: Wall Street fell after our close (Nasdaq −2.14%, AI concerns); Hong Kong is shut today, so Asian price discovery is thinner.
- Oil, peso and yields: WTI above $100, USD-PHP near 63 and the PHL 10-year near 8% raise import and funding costs; PHP 30B of 8% 2031 bonds are auctioned Tuesday.
- Indonesia: MSCI weighing exclusion and a pasted JCI drop of 11.5% (single-source) could weigh on regional emerging-market flows; the Philippines is not named.
- Energy and weather (headlines): Manila and Washington discussed energy diversification (strategic petroleum reserve, nuclear, LNG, geothermal, natural hydrogen); Super Typhoon Champi is due to enter PAR on Tuesday (to be named Rosal); hydropower developers seek to fast-track projects during El Niño.

The concept. A bond pays a fixed coupon, so its price moves opposite to market yields: when yields rise, existing bonds are worth less, and when yields fall they are worth more. A new bond sold at auction is priced to match what investors demand today, so its coupon is usually close to the market yield and it sells near face value. Longer bonds react more to the same yield move.

Oct 16 / Oct 20 reading	Value
PHL 10-yr yield (desk paste)	7.938% → 7.979% (+4.1bp)
US 10-yr yield (desk paste)	5.098% (+0.22%)
Oct 20 auction (desk)	PHP 30B of 8% 2031 Treasury bonds
Coupon vs PHL 10-yr yield	8% vs 7.979% (different maturities, not like-for-like)
Financials index, same day	1,805.83 (+1.51%)

Why it matters today. A 4.1bp rise is small, and the 2031 bond is a shorter bond than the 10-year, so we cannot read the auction's likely yield from today's print. Even so, the coupon sits almost at the benchmark yield, so the result should show how much extra yield investors want to lend to the government. Higher yields lower the value of bonds banks already hold but also raise what banks earn on new lending, which is why bank stocks did not fall with yields on Friday; treat one day as a pause, not proof.
How to use it. (1) Compare the auction's cut-off yield with the 8% coupon: a higher yield means the bonds sold below face value. (2) Compare it with the secondary-market yield of similar maturity (not the 10-year). (3) Watch whether the peso and bank stocks react the same day. Takeaway: yields and bond prices move in opposite directions, and an auction shows what investors demand now.
