Friday, October 2, 2026 | Covering the Thursday, October 1 session *Employing Intelligent InvestingPSEi 5,629 (–0.88%) Slides for a Fourth Day as Foreigners Pull ₱1.46B; GCash Prices at ₱6.60

The PSEi fell 0.88% to 5,629.47, a fourth straight loss and another 2026 low, now 45 points above the Nov-2025 low of 5,584. Net foreign selling rose to ₱1.465B, bringing three days of outflows to ₱3.39B. SM, ICT and BDO took the brunt. AC was the outlier again: it rose 4.60% to ₱523 on foreign buying, with ₱393.8M of blocks crossing above its close at ₱525. Mynt priced the GCash IPO at ₱6.60, below our ₱7.00 line. The peso slid for a fourth day to ₱62.775, and the US 10-year touched 5.34% before easing.

THE CALL — ACTIONABLE HIGHLIGHTS🟡 IPO WATCH MYNT (GCash) ₱6.60 final — Priced below our ₱7.00 line: subscribe in the Oct 6–12 offer

Mynt priced at ₱6.60, 34% below the ₱10 cap, raising about ₱53B in the base deal and up to about ₱60.9B if the overallotment option is fully exercised. Cornerstones have committed ₱36.5B. GCash holds about 89% of the consumer e-wallet market with 94 million registered users. At ₱6.60 the price is inside our margin-of-safety threshold, so we would subscribe. The near-term risk: an intensifying El Niño could squeeze GCash's rural and lower-income users, raising cash-outs even as remittance flows rise. Listing is Oct 20.

🟢 ACCUMULATE AC ₱523.00 (+4.60%) — Second day of foreign buying; blocks crossed above the close

AC was the second-best PSEi performer, trading ₱794.1M with ₱60.9M of net foreign buying, plus ₱393.8M in three blocks at ₱525, above its ₱523 close. Mynt pricing confirms a reference value for AC's stake. Stay with it: raise the hold line to ₱500 (Wednesday's close) and expect some profit-taking after a 6.7% two-day gain.

🟢 ACCUMULATE ALI ₱15.10 (–0.66%) — Still holding above ₱15.00 while the market falls

ALI traded ₱15.02–15.24 on ₱148.6M of value, with foreigners small net buyers (+₱2.1M). It remains above our ₱14.94 review level. Property fell 1.07% overall, led by REITs and RLC, so ALI is outperforming its own sector. Keep accumulating in tranches.

🟡 MONITOR GLO ₱1,535 (+2.13%) — The market now prices Globe's Mynt stake at about two-thirds of Globe

GLO bounced to a ₱1,562 high but closed below our ₱1,555 re-entry level. Several outlets put Mynt's valuation at about $7B (≈₱440B) at ₱6.60. On that basis, Globe's 33.84% stake is worth about ₱149B, roughly two-thirds of GLO's ₱222B market cap, which leaves the telco and data-center businesses valued at about ₱73B. That discount makes the case for re-entering. We would move back to Accumulate on a close above ₱1,555.

🔴 AVOID ICT ₱867.00 (–2.69%) — Third day of heavy foreign selling

ICT traded ₱1.91B (31% of main-board value) with ₱276.6M of net foreign selling and a ₱858 intraday low. Over the last three sessions, foreign selling in ICT totals ₱547M. Stay out until ICT recovers ₱890 (Thursday's high) and the selling slows.

● AVOID PX ₱11.12 (−3.30%) — Padcal union votes to strike

NAMAWU rejected Philex's contract offer and voted to strike; about 1,200 rank-and-file workers are mostly at the Padcal mine in Benguet. A strike vote does not automatically stop work, and talks continue, but Philex warns output could be cut. Padcal faces a December 2028 closure deadline. Avoid until there is a settlement.

GLOBAL MARKETS

Wall Street recovered from early losses to finish slightly higher after a choppy session, as Treasury yields eased off their highs. The 10-year touched about 5.34%, a 24-year high, before settling near 5.24%. Fear gauges stayed elevated. Long-bond stress spread to the UK, where the 30-year gilt yield hit 6% for the first time since 1998. In Asia, Japan's Nikkei had its best day in about two months, up 3.30%, after Micron's strong AI-driven forecast lifted chip stocks. China and Hong Kong were closed for National Day. The dollar index rose to 102.10, its highest since May.

- China demand: slower construction and infrastructure spending is weighing on copper, and softer domestic demand is hurting EV sales. China's property slump keeps resisting government support as values fall and buyer confidence stays weak. One exception: Leapmotor posted record deliveries of 105,656 in September.
- Indonesia: September inflation rose to 3.28% from 3.19%, just below the 3.30% consensus.
- El Niño and Asian bonds: a strengthening El Niño is adding to the selloff in Southeast Asian local-currency bonds, which could push benchmark yields higher, including in the Philippines.

COMMODITIES

Oil jumped as President Trump weighed a larger US military presence in the Middle East. Investrade also cited Chinese export restrictions. WTI rose 2.7% to $92.87 and Brent 4.4% to $102.31. Gold edged up but stays under pressure from high yields and a strong dollar. US physical silver demand surged: American Eagle coin sales more than doubled in September to about 4.14 million ounces.

FX & RATES

The peso lost another 13.5 centavos to ₱62.775, touching ₱62.795 intraday. It is now within 23 centavos of ₱63 and is set for a fifth day of declines (₱62.72 early Friday), as most Asian currencies fell against the dollar. The PHL 10-year fell 10.4bp to 7.62% on Wednesday but remains above our 7% bank-caution trigger. Bank lending grew 11.0% y/y in August, the fastest in three months, led by business loans (+10.6%) while consumer loan growth slowed to 16.2%. M3 grew 11.2%.

PHILIPPINES STRATEGY

Two signals pointing opposite ways. Foreigners are leaving: ₱3.39B net in three days, concentrated in SM, ICT and the banks, and the peso is close to ₱63. But they are buying AC (two days) and PGOLD (+₱42.5M), and the GCash IPO priced cheaply enough to attract BlackRock, Fidelity and IFC as cornerstones. They are not exiting the Philippines wholesale; they are becoming more selective about price.

Where we lean in: Subscribe to Mynt at ₱6.60. Accumulate AC and ALI. Watch GLO for re-entry above ₱1,555, since the Mynt price implies a large discount on the rest of Globe. PGOLD, a defensive retailer with foreign buying, is worth watching as food inflation peaks.

What to avoid: ICT, banks (BDO −₱129.8M), PX (strike risk), and names with governance or political-linkage overhangs. REITs are still under rate pressure: AREIT −3.51% and RCR −0.81%.

- SEC broker capital: the SEC proposes raising broker-dealers' minimum unimpaired paid-up capital to ₱120M from ₱100M, the level set in 2004 (equivalent to ₱230.5M today after inflation). Existing firms must reach ₱100M by end-2029 and ₱120M by end-2030; trading participants using the ₱30M alternative must post a ₱20M surety bond by end-2028. Comments close Oct 14. A separate draft would require third-party debt collectors to be accredited (comments close Oct 15).
- PH Resorts (PHR ₱0.178, −3.26%): Donatela Resort in Panglao closed on Sep 30 after foreclosure proceedings, and the property passes to LANDBANK. The company says there is no material impact once the Udenna restructuring is in place. Avoid.

All Shares	3,179.08	3,156.83	▼ -0.70%	—

All six sectors fell. Services was the worst for a second day (-2.03%) on ICT. Holding Firms was nearly flat as AC offset SM and GTCAP; its value includes ₱899M of GTCAP and AC blocks. Sector values include block sales.

FOREIGN FUND FLOW

Foreigners bought ₱3.637B and sold ₱5.102B, a net sale of ₱1.465B, the biggest of the four-day slide. SM (-₱287.6M) and ICT (-₱276.6M) were the top two sales again, followed by BDO (-₱129.8M). ACEN rose 7.60% despite ₱50.7M of foreign selling, so locals drove that bounce. Net foreign buyers were spread across sectors: PSE, BPI and EW in financials; AC, LTG and COSCO in holding firms; ALI in property; FPH in industrials; PGOLD, GLO, WEB, HI, KEEPR, WLCON and STI in services; and SCC and AT in mining.

CORPORATE STANCE CARDS

MONITOR GLO ₱1,535 (+2.13%) — Satellite roaming in Japan via KDDI and Starlink

Globe roaming customers in Japan can now connect directly to Starlink satellites from compatible LTE/5G Android and HarmonyOS phones, with no extra hardware. Plans start at ₱400 for 7 days (2GB standard data, 1GB satellite data and 50 satellite texts), and KDDI users get the same access in the Philippines. Small in revenue terms, but it adds to Globe's network-quality story while the NTC dispute continues.

MONITOR LTL (PNB Holdings) ₱1.20 (unch.) — New Makati tenant; PNB Makati Center 86% leased

Creative agency RNDMD has opened a studio at the 35,000 sqm PNB Makati Center, bringing occupancy to 86%. The ground floor is being redeveloped for food, beverage and lifestyle tenants. LTL traded ₱119.5M at its usual ₱1.20 level with ₱6.4M of foreign selling. Steady leasing news, but trading is dominated by flow at a fixed price.

MONITOR PAL ₱3.36 (+1.82%) — Manila–Saipan flights resume Oct 25

PAL is reopening a Pacific leisure route ahead of the holidays. The route is small, but it adds holiday capacity while the Level 17 fuel surcharge (Oct 1–15) lifts fares. Oil above $100 Brent remains the main margin risk for airlines.

MONITOR PPC ₱18.88 (+14.42%) — Pryce exits pharmaceuticals to focus on LPG

Pryce Pharmaceuticals was transferred to the PGI Retirement Fund for ₱7.5M. It earned only ₱24M in 1H26, under 1% of revenue. LPG (PryceGas) is 90.8% of sales (₱10.65B), industrial gases 5.9% and real estate/memorial parks 1.8%. It is a sensible simplification, but the 14% jump came on only ₱1.25M of value. Do not chase it.

MONITOR PIZZA ₱5.19 (unch.) — SPAVI reshuffles Potato Corner and Peri-Peri leadership

Edwin Africa, formerly of Century Pacific Food, becomes COO overseeing a consolidated Potato Corner business, domestic and international. Roy Quejada moves to head Peri-Peri. Chairman Christopher Po calls 2026 a restructuring year: underperforming stores are closing and support offices are being streamlined across about 3,074 outlets. Watch whether margins improve.

LEARN — EARNINGS YIELD VS. THE BOND YIELD

The concept. Earnings yield is the P/E ratio turned upside down: earnings per share divided by share price. It shows what a stock “yields” in earnings for every peso invested, so it can be compared directly with a bond’s interest rate. The difference between the two is a rough measure of the equity risk premium: the extra return you get for taking stock-market risk instead of holding a government bond.

The formula. Earnings yield = $\text{EPS} \div \text{Price} = 1 \div (\text{P/E})$. Equity risk premium (rough) = Earnings yield – Government bond yield.

Applied to AT today. Atlas Mining closed at ₱18.28 with trailing EPS of ₱1.41, a P/E of about 13.0x. That is an earnings yield of about 7.7%. The PHL 10-year pays 7.62%, so the premium for owning AT over a risk-free government bond is roughly 0.1 percentage point: almost nothing. That helps explain why AT is down from its ₱24 high despite strong earnings (₱5.02B net income on ₱21.93B revenue, ROE 10.8%). When bonds pay 7.6%, an investor in a cyclical miner needs either a lower price or faster growth to be paid for the risk.

Applied to the market. When bond yields jump, as with the US 10-year at 5.34%, the UK 30-year gilt at 6% and the PHL 10-year above 7.5%, every stock’s earnings yield has to rise to stay competitive. Since earnings do not change overnight, prices fall instead. That is a big part of why the PSEi has slid four days in a row even as August exports hit a record.

Takeaway. Compare a stock’s earnings yield with the 10-year before buying. A wide gap is a buffer; a thin one means the price is pricing in growth that still has to happen. AT reports on Oct 23, and that result will show whether its growth justifies today’s thin premium.
